

1. The first group of respondents (Group 1) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

2. The second group of respondents (Group 2) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

3. The third group of respondents (Group 3) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

4. The fourth group of respondents (Group 4) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

5. The fifth group of respondents (Group 5) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

6. The sixth group of respondents (Group 6) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

7. The seventh group of respondents (Group 7) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

8. The eighth group of respondents (Group 8) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

9. The ninth group of respondents (Group 9) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

10. The tenth group of respondents (Group 10) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. This group was used to determine the overall prevalence of the condition in the general population.

C. Lynne Anderson

3761

[illegible]

INTERFERENCE SEARCHED
Class	Subclass	Date	Examiner
PGPubs Interference Search- see Search History		12/5/2007	CLA

	DATE	EXMR
EAST search - see notes	5/18/2004	CLA
Update previous search	11/9/2004	CLA
EAST search - "specific gravity" same "ionic strength"	6/22/2005	CLA
Update previous search	12/5/2007	CLA